HB No. 29

Abstract: Updates applicability of provisions in Title 18 as a result of the 2010 census.

Present law provides dates for primary and general elections including gubernatorial, congressional, municipal, and special elections, and for proposition elections. Most of the dates provided for local elections are applicable everywhere, but provides some exceptions for a parish containing a municipality with a population of 475,000 or more.

For election of municipal and ward officers who are not elected at the same time as the governor or members of congress, present law generally provides that the primary election is held on the first Saturday in April, and the general election is held on the fourth Saturday after the primary. (Present law provides different dates if a presidential preference primary is held on the second or third Saturday in Feb. of the same year.)

For the election of municipal and parochial officers in a parish containing a municipality with a population of 475,000 or more, present law provides that the primary is held on the first Saturday in Feb., and the general election is held on the fourth Saturday after the primary. Present law also authorizes such a parish to use these dates for a special election to fill a newly created office or to fill a vacancy and to use the first Saturday in Feb. date for a proposition election. Further provides specific dates for the opening of qualifying and for officials to take office associated with these primary and general election dates.

Proposed law retains present law except to change the classification of parishes to which special provisions apply; provisions applicable to a parish containing a municipality with a population of 475,000 or more under present law are applicable to a parish containing a municipality with a population of 300,000 or more under proposed law.
